ELECTION FIRES GLITTER BEFORE FINAL OUTBURST

Final Appeal of Candidates
Lifted to Public Ear
Before Polls Open

OFFICE SEEKERS BUSY

McKeel Issues Statement to Clarify Voting on School Board Members

The fever pre-election period reached the business district of Ada today and little groups of would-be politicians were seen scattered about town broadcasting their feelings and prognostications on the outcome of the election tomorrow.

Cars, labelled with placards and posters, plunged through the business districts of the city this morning announcing the appeal of respective candidates for the three offices of commissioners in Ada's city government.

Handbills and replenished supplies of candidate cards were being distributed in business sections of the city by candidates and friends in interest of their contention for election to city offices.

While no general election rally is scheduled for tonight, observers believe that the streets will be busy with politicians who will conduct their final personal appeal to voters of the city who come downtown tonight.

It is generally understood that candidates for office will launch a final appeal to voters tomorrow and render all sorts of services in interest of the voters and their good will, such as conducting auto communication to the various precincts for those who might otherwise fail to vote.

In connection with the feeling of certainty among many candidates, rumors of little wagers on the strength of certain candidates are being whispered about town today.

In order to clarify the situation in connection with the election of school board officials, Dr. Sam McKeel, secretary of the election board, makes the following statement:

It seems that some confusion has arisen as to the manner of procedure in election of members of the board of education in the primary election to be held tomorrow. According to an amendment to the charter of the city of Ada which seems to have been overlooked, definite provision is made for such elections, both as to time and manner of procedure, and such provision takes precedence over state school law.

According to the charter provision members of the board of education, including treasurer, are to be nominated by a vote of the qualified voters of the school district at large and not limited to the voters in the ward from which candidates for places on the board are nominated.

Therefore, in the election tomorrow the qualified voters of the entire school district will be eligible to vote for these members of the board of education and for a school treasurer.

All voters in the school district residing in outlying territory will vote for members of the school board and treasurer at the city hall.

SAM A. MCKEEL,
Secretary Pontotoc County Election Board.

Shrine Club Plans Furthered in Talk Of Members Sunday

The plans of the Pontotoc County Shrine Club in their program of activity for securing the Delphi Temple for Ada were furthered Sunday afternoon when the club met to outline the windup of their drive to secure 600 signers on a petition for the designation of the Temple here.

Shriners plan the final drive over this section of the state this week to secure the 100 names sufficient to fill out the petition to the imperial council at Kansas City on June 3, 4 and 6.

TRIAL OF OUSTER SUIT ON WOMAN OFFICIAL STARTED

(By the Associated Press)
BARTLESVILLE, March 17.—The trial of the ouster suit against Miss Mary Richards, county school superintendent, charged with irregularities in office, got under way in district court. Defense attorneys filed a motion for dismissal on grounds that the charges did not show sufficient facts that she was guilty of the charge.

Judge Ferrell overruled the motion. The morning was devoted to selection of a jury.

Coolidge Expresses Regrets.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 17.—President Coolidge today wrote Anton Land, the "Christus" of the Passion players, expressing his personal regret that any misunderstanding should have marked the visit to the white house Saturday of the players.

Klan to Assemble To Protest Grand Jury Indictment

(By the Associated Press)
HERRIN, Ill., March 17.—A gathering of the Ku Klux Klan in Herrin tomorrow to protest against what they term the "unrighteous verdicts of the grand jury" which indicted S. Glenn Young, their paid investigator, and others on Thursday, was announced from various pulpits in southern Illinois last night and will bring 25,000 here tomorrow, their leaders declare. Young (it became known today, will be arraigned in Herrin city court on 55 counts. A parade of protest will be held. Congregations of all Herrin's Protestant churches will march under banners carrying the name of their churches.

POLICEMAN SHOTS MAN; OUT ON BOND

Dismukes Released This Morning
After Incident;
Claims Accidental

Gaston Dismuke, city policeman, was permitted freedom on bond today under a charge of assault with intent to kill in connection with the shooting of Cecil Curry, late Sunday afternoon, after Curry had been placed under arrest by policemen on charge of drunkenness.

Curry, who was rushed to a city hospital immediately after the shooting yesterday afternoon, was reported in no serious condition today and will recover in a short time from his wound which proved to be of minor consequence.

The bullet entered the left side and passed over the hip without effecting the internal organs, purely a flesh wound according to attending physicians.

Following the shooting yesterday, Dismukes was placed in the county jail to await action as an outgrowth of the shooting. His bond was fixed in Justice H. J. Brown's court this morning and bondsman secured his release. His preliminary was set for March 21, pending the recovery of Curry.

Claims Shooting Accidental
According to a statement of Police Chief Wick Adair, Curry had been arrested late yesterday afternoon by Dismukes and another officer on a charge of drunkenness and was being conducted to the city jail. At the alley between Main and Twelfth streets, Curry broke loose from the two officers and started running down the alley. According to Adair's statement, Dismukes claims he pulled his gun with the intention of firing above his head in order to frighten him and halt his flight, but his toe slipped and the random shot entered the left side of the fleeing man.

According to Chief Adair, Curry has a police record of long standing in the department and recently caused police considerable trouble when he resisted arrest and attacked an officer on one of the streets of the city. Dismukes is practically a new member of the force, having been added to the department about three weeks ago, Chief Adair said.

Williams and Waner Star in Frisco Series

Lefty Williams and Paul Waner have started off with a rush in the campaign of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League. Williams is making a great showing in the box and Waner promises to surpass his last year's record as a slugger.

Before a double-header the Kansas City Blues, winners over Baltimore in the "Little World Series" last fall, held a lead in the spring series over the Seals who won the Pacific Coast League pennant.

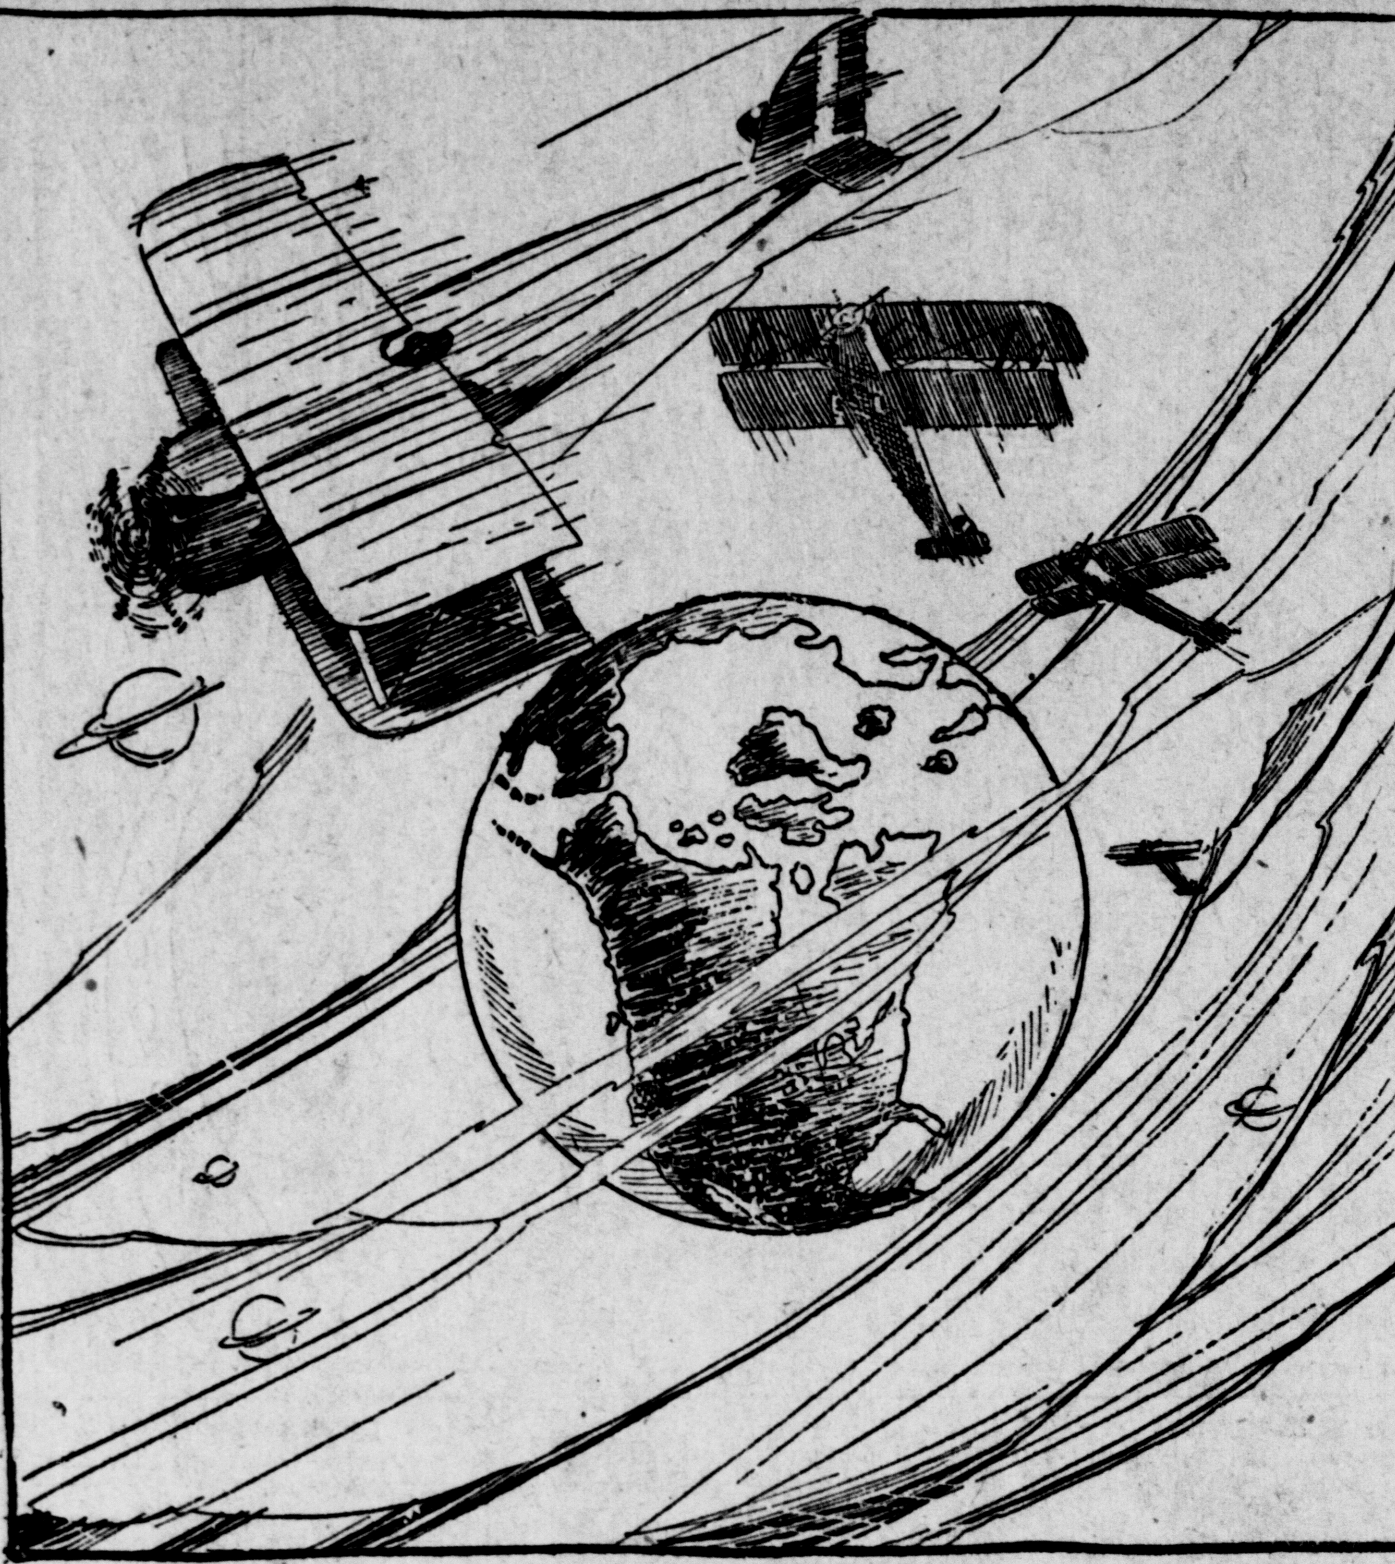

In the first game Sunday the Seals used three pitchers to win. In the second Lefty Williams, who has pitched for Ada several seasons, took the box and pitched his team to a six to two victory, thus evening the series. In addition to holding down the twirling job for the entire game Williams held his opponents to the low level of four hits.

In the two games Sunday Waner opened his campaign by hitting safely five times in seven times at bat. Congratulations have been wired from local fans to Ada's representatives in the coast league.

WEDDING RING OF WIFE OF DAVIS SENT CONVICT

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—The wedding ring which nineteen months ago bound Susie Davis to Herman Fox Davis in the holy bonds of matrimony will be missing from the ring finger of the dead woman when she is laid to rest here this afternoon. The ring has been sent to Davis at McAlester where he is serving a life sentence for a part in the murder of Paul McCarthy, an Oklahoma City attorney. It was the dying woman's wish that the ring be sent to her husband.

COMDR. MARTIN TELLS THE WORLD—"HUH, YOU'RE NOT SO BIG AFTER ALL"

Corn Whiskey Causes Grief to Youngsters

Pontotoc county corn has a powerful kick for the youngsters who would try out the relative strength of the liquid on their constitutions.

This fact, well known to old timers, was revealed in the case of several youngsters who tipped a jar of corn, which they found in the vicinity of the Colbert school house Sunday.

Clinton VanCuren, one of the boys in the party, was barely saved from death by hasty attention at the Breco hospital and others fared hard as a result of their trial of the bottled contents.

According to the story told by the boys, they were roaming in the vicinity of the Colbert school house Sunday when they discovered a fruit jar filled with liquid which smacked in taste of Pontotoc county's corn whiskey.

The boys were rushed to the attention of local physicians and as far as could be learned today none were in immediate danger as a result of their consumption of the corn products.

The report that the youngsters had taken a quantity of wood alcohol was denied by Dr. Joseph Breco, who attended young VanCuren. Breco stated that the high-powered specimen of corn whiskey was sufficient to produce the results and would have caused death should medical attention not have been rendered without delay.

Police Court is Busy With Week End Violations

Police court records docketed up a busy week-end this morning when five offenders of city ordinances faced the bar of justice this morning to counts bringing fines into the city treasury.

Two arrests for speeding, one for possession of whiskey totaled the activities of the police over the week-end.

One of the arrests on charge of possession was turned over to federal authorities for further action at the commissioners court at Coal-gate.

Political Leaders Turn Attention to El Reno Convention

(By the Associated Press)
EL RENO, March 17.—Oklahoma political leaders turned their attention today to this city as the hour for convening of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction league's yearly meeting grew near. J. B. Tosh, Hobart, president of the league, will call the convention to order this morning. The session will continue to Tuesday.

Endorsement of candidates for the United States senate, house of representatives, state supreme court, and state corporation commission is awaited with interest by political observers who believe the league's action will indicate the direction of the political wind.

SEVENTY GAINED BY REVIVAL HERE

Rev. Thorn Closes Services
Here With Two Sermons
Sunday

With seventy additions to the church, most of them by profession of faith and baptism, and more than that number of conversions, the Baptist revival came to an end Sunday evening. Rev. Thorn and John R. Harris and wife returned to their various homes. The members of the First Baptist church express themselves as being more than pleased at the revival of spirituality and can see a greater service for the future.

Sunday saw two more services, and the auditorium was filled each time in spite of the driving rains. The evangelist preached on the life of Moses in the morning and in the evening upon accepting the call to follow Christ.

On Friday evening the members of the church gave an old fashioned pounding to Rev. and Mrs. Morris, taking such things as fruit, canned goods and other delicious supplies for the table. That night he announced that he thought he would remain in Ada another five years, making ten in all.

In many respects, both Rev. Morris and members of the church say it was the best revival meeting ever held here. The preaching was above the average, the singing was excellent and the results were all that were hoped for and in fact more than any one had expected.

In Congress

Attorney General Daugherty is being kept in office by President Coolidge because of Daugherty's "supposed political influence" in the forth-coming campaign, Senator Garaway, democrat, Arkansas, today charged in the senate.

Louisiana's tax imposed upon production of oil and gas in that state was today sustained by the supreme court.

The senate revised today by a vote of 70 to 4 to approve a proposed constitutional amendment limiting the president to one term of four years.

Declaring the navy had everything to gain and nothing to lose, acting secretary of the navy Roosevelt today urged acceptance of the site of the proposed Alameda naval base.

BROKEN ARROW, March 17.—Fred W. Garrett, 45, a hardware merchant, was found dead in his store yesterday and Harve Shrader, a contractor, was discovered unconscious by a passerby who looked in at the store window.

Authorities had an analysis made of liquor found in the room and announced today that it was found to contain wood alcohol and other poison. Physicians said Shrader probably would recover.

Start Round World Trip By Airplane

Planes Hop Off California
Field to Encircle
Globe

(By the Associated Press)
CLOVER FIELD, Santa Monica, Cal., March 17.—The army flight around the world started today at 9:32 a. m. Major F. L. Martin was the first to get away. Lieutenant Leigh Wade, photographer, of the flight was the second to leave.

The flight will be up the Pacific coast to Alaska with an overnight stop at Sacramento, California, tonight, another stop at Vancouver Barracks, Washington, Tuesday and a sojourn at Seattle of several days where the flyers will change land gears for pontoons.

Then the cruisers will fly over British Columbia to Alaska, across the Aleutian Islands to the Kuriles, north of Japan; down to Japan, across to China, down the Chinese coast to French Indo-China, Burma, India, to Persia, over Mesopotamia, over Syria, over the Holy Land, through Turkey, over Roumania, Serbia, Germany, France, England, Ireland and over the Orkneys and Faroe Islands to Iceland, Greenland, Labrador, down through Canada and New England coast to Washington and then across country to Clover Field.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—Flies on the around the world flight passed over Monolith on the southern slope of Tapachipi mountain at 10:51 a. m., the station agent at Monolith reported.

CLOVER FIELD, Santa Monica, Cal., March 17.—Three world cruiser airplanes built to go around the globe, were waiting today for the word that would start them soaring northward on the first leg of a 30,000 mile voyage through the air of 23 countries, back again to the starting point on this army flying field.

The hop off was set for 7 o'clock but at that hour with clouds gathering in the sky observers were reminded that unfavorable weather conditions might postpone the start.

Should a heavy fog come in from the ocean close to starting time, Lieut. C. C. Mosby, commandant of the flying field, said the pilots might have to delay until later in the day.

Funeral Services For Teacher Here; Body Goes to Enid

Funeral services for Charles M. Bliss, supervisor of music at the high school, who died Friday morning of heart disease, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home.

Rev. Wallace of the Christian church preached the funeral sermon and the glee club of the high school sang. Members of the school faculty acted as pallbearers. After the service the body was taken to the Katy station and placed on board the train to be taken to Enid. The body was accompanied by his wife and daughter.

St. Pat's Day Observed

Anyone who may think the race of Irishmen is disappearing from the earth is quickly disillusioned by the number of bright green decorations met on the street on St. Pat's day.

One can hardly believe that Irish blood is so generously mixed with American until the celebration of the exodus of snakes from Ireland but it is easy to believe that most of our population can trace their ancestors to the land of the blarney stone.

Orange as a lapel decoration is noticeably absent while the shamrock in its brilliant green flaunts its leaf through the streets of the nation.

WALLACE HOLDS LARGE AUDIENCE

Many Attend Special Service
To Hear Christian Church
Pastor

Notwithstanding the fact that two meetings were in progress in the city, Rev. H. W. Wallace had a large audience to hear his discussion "Was Jesus Born of a Virgin" Sunday morning at the Christian church. The subject was discussed ably and forcefully in a plain straightforward manner, showing that it was one of the fundamentals of the Christian Religion. He clearly showed that those who doubted the Divine Fatherhood of Christ and yet claimed to be Christians were undertaking to make their Saviour the bastard son of Joseph and Mary and no intelligent man could fervently worship him, or look to him as a redeemer of mankind with any such conception of his origin.

Sunday night there was a good sized audience out, though the rain prevented the attendance from being up to the standard. The preacher changed his subject to that of "Faithfulness."

On Monday nights the pastor is teaching a class on the Life of Christ, a course designed to give the pupils a clear outline of his life and work as taught in the four Gospels.

The subject for the mid-week prayer meeting this week is "The Communion," and A. C. Chaney is the leader. These Wednesday night meetings are being largely attended.

The preacher's subject for next Sunday morning is "What the Christian Church Teaches and Why," and at night "Is the church of Christ a Denomination?"

NEWTON SHOWS ADD STRENGTH TO POLLS HERE

Among the business institutions that are bringing to the city new citizens, adding thereby to the population and the voting strength of Ada, is Honest Bill Newton's Show. With the rapid increase in the number of animal attractions that have been added to his aggregation within the last two years has been a corresponding growth of the number of men required to handle the show.

Sixty-seven voters registered from among the workers employed by Honest Bill to take part in the coming elections, which will decide the personnel of the city government under which they will work on their return from the coming road trip of the show.

After these part-time residents of the city have begun their tour of the state to the north they will watch with eagerness reports of the general election later on.

These sixty-seven voters represent a rapid increase in the expansion of Newton's show in the time he has made Ada his headquarters and are taking as active an interest in the affairs of the city as their employer.

St. Patrick's Day is Snow Period for all Middle West States

(By the Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17.—The budding green changed to white on this St. Patrick's day in a large part of the central west. Snow ranging in depth from an inch to nearly two feet in some localities covered southern Nebraska, most of Kansas, and northeast Missouri, and weather officials predicted the white area would widen during the day to include northern Oklahoma.

Northwest and central Kansas were buried under the heaviest blanket of snow of the season. In that region yesterday as much as fifteen inches fell during the daylight hours and the storm continued into the night.

Seething Revelation of Method
Of Placing Fight Films
On Market Told

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 17.—The name of Attorney General Daugherty was directly linked with the Dempsey-Carpenter fight film deal in testimony today before the senate investigating committee. Gerald O. Holdridge, a former department of justice agent, testified that Jap Numa, New York correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer and one of those named as involved in the arrangement, had "practically accused" the attorney general himself with being head of the "conspiracy" to show the picture throughout the country. The witness declared that Numa also had said that William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, was "standing in" on the deal.

Holdridge said Numa told him that the attorney general said to him:

"If you put this across you ought to get a big cut, not less than fifty percent."

"I do," Holdridge said with emphasis when Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, asked if he believed the attorney general and Burns were "a couple of crooks."

He went to New York, Holdridge said, and he and another agent, Thomas Spellacy, while investigating a lottery case, called on Jap Numa at Spellacy's suggestion. Numa had previously been named as one of the film exhibition syndicate. Numa told him the witness said that he believed another agent was "looking for a shake-down," Numa also mentioned, he said, that he was "friendly with Mr. Burns and also with Mr. Daugherty."

Holdridge later was told by Numa he said, that the attorney general was head of the whole conspiracy and that William J. Burns was standing in.

"Spellacy told me the man at the head of the whole thing was Jap Numa," Holdridge said. Holdridge said Numa told him that on July 5, 1921 he (Numa) brought the film here and went to the house of Edward B. McLean, publisher.

Exhibited at McLean's House.
The pictures were exhibited at McLean's house, the witness said, and Postmaster General New and various cabinet officers and ambassadors were present. Mr. Daugherty, Mr. New, and George Christian, President Harding's secretary, discussed with Numa the exhibition of the film, the witness said Numa told him.

Numa said Mr. Daugherty told him, according to the witness, that the law prohibited only the transportation of films and suggested to Numa that he take up the matter with Alfred R. Urion, a lawyer here. Numa said he had "reached an understanding" with Urion, Holdridge stated. He added that Numa told him "we went to it."

There was to be a "goat" in each state to be fined, Numa told him, the witness added, and there was to be an effort to "get a line" on the attitude of federal judges.

"For the exhibition of the pictures" at the McLean home, Holdridge went on, Numa had talked with Attorney General Daugherty and the president.

"What did Urion try to get over to you? What was his idea?" Senator Wheeler asked. "He tried to impress me that he was a friend of the Director Burns," said Holdridge. "Some of the people tried to give me the impression Urion was a friend of Mr. Daugherty."

Holdridge testified that another agent of the justice department told him he had enough evidence to convict F. C. Quinby, producer of the film, but that nothing was done. Gordon, a brother of Jap, was present at one of his exhibitions, the agent said.

Presently he found himself at work in New York. Numa told me with great satisfaction after the trip to Washington that the agent who had frightened him had been transferred to another assignment."

Holdridge said he learned that John Haas, another secret agent who was investigating the film matter, also had been sent out of the country.

Records he got from the department of justice showed only eleven or twelve films where Jap Numa said the films had been exhibited in 21 or 22 states and films were imposed on the goats there. The witness said the list of arrests showed William H. Rudolph was arrested four times for transportation of the film into four states, Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THINE, O LORD, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the Heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all.—1 Chronicles 29:11.

VOTE FOR ADA.

Tomorrow every loyal citizen of Ada ought to vote for his preference for the three commissioners who will have charge of our city affairs for the next biennium. Never has there been a more important city election, and we hope that every man and woman who can legally vote will go to the polls.

The News will not attempt to tell you for whom to vote. The men who are candidates for the various offices are citizens who have been here a long time, and are more or less familiar to the voting populace. There are certain traits an official should possess, however, and we believe that these tests should be applied to every candidate, and after these tests have been applied, we should vote for the man who measures up to them most satisfactorily.

In the first place, an officer of the city of Ada should be honest. Honesty is essential in government, as in private life, and no man who can be bought, or in any other way influenced to do anything but what he knows is right, should be permitted to have charge of our civic affairs. We have seen what crookedness in high places means, and we should be certain that no crookedness creeps into our little city's official family.

An officer of Ada ought to be a man of unquestioned moral stamina. This means more than honesty. It means that one must have a heart. He must be tender, but at the same time firm. Great men have the heart of children and the firmness of martyrs. He must be anxious to keep the city clean of places of vice, such as pool halls, gambling dens, morally indecent resorts, and bootlegging.

He must be capable. The most honest person might not make a good official. A man to succeed in a public office must be capable of taking responsibility. While some men rise in public office to meet the responsibilities, it is safer, as a rule to take the man who has already been schooled in responsibilities, and who we know is able to handle big affairs in a big way.

He must be economical. Ada is not an oil town yet, and even if it were money should not be wasted. We must keep the tax rate down and the efficiency of the city government high. Our officials must be honest and capable, but also they must realize that in spending a dollar they are spending that which has been put in their hands as a sacred trust.

Ada is a school town. Besides one of the best public school systems we now boast of the greatest teachers college in the state and one of the greatest in the nation. We must not let anything of an immoral nature come in to retard the growth of these institutions.

We are not suggesting that any candidate is allied with the lawless element and simply point a standard by which all should be weighed.

We hope that every one will vote tomorrow, and when you do, we have an abiding faith that the city government will be in good hands. Vote for Ada.

The legislature might have saved the state more than $2,000,000 by not passing the bill to refund state taxes illegally collected, but certainly no one can question the justice of the act as passed. Most of the big tax payers paid under protest and their money was promptly refunded when the supreme court declared the levy illegal. The small payers, however, had no recourse other than the legislature. It is probable that much of the appropriation will be left in the treasury for in most cases a few cents or a few dollars was involved and many will not take the trouble to call for a refund. The men who was assessed $1,000 will have only $1.50 coming back to him and thousands did not pay taxes on even that sum.

If Gov. Trapp's new road law helps to get the state out of the mud owners of automobiles will not kick about the extra tax on gasoline. What makes people sore is paying out taxes for roads year after year and getting no permanent results. If by a system of cooperation by federal, state and county governments a system of hard surfaced roads can be secured autoists will consider the tax as highly meritorious. If only a few miles of permanent roads can be built in each county every year it will not be many years until Oklahoma is out of the mud. Of course sections not getting first call will raise a row but it is manifestly impossible to build a good road by every man's door at the same time.

Premier MacDonald evidently took a leaf from President Wilson's book. He insists that the British government must put all its cards on the table in its settlement of differences with France and that all dealings shall be above board. In view of the lamentable failure of his predecessors who clung to the traditional tricks of diplomacy, MacDonald realizes that open methods are the only ones that will avail, thus advocating the new honest and open diplomacy for which Wilson declared.

MARCH—KING WINTER'S LAST ACT—MISS SPRING IS WAITING HER CUE

DID YOU VOTE?

Next Year if taxes are too high? About city expenses you sigh—You wail, "Must we forever endure These things which keep us poor?" You'd better be right sure That in tomorrow's election—You Vote.

Yes, women may complain the streets are a mess, And their indignation loudly express, That the city's lights are poor—But did you vote? Are you sure?

No need to say the bosses rule the show.

That graft is reaching high and low.

And all you say may be so.

But did you vote?

Mr. and Mrs. Voter, you may say, If things are not just your way.

"Well, in that election I didn't vote, Politics just gets my goat."

Oh, you may say, O Decent Citizen,

"I want in our offices business men"

But if you didn't vote—really do you?

If not—you'll get what's coming to you.

—Minnie G. Hope.

THE REFORM MOTIVE

(Eufala Journal)
The Democratic party at its best has always had the fervor of a kind of crusade. The people who can remember the spirit of the party during the days of Governor Cleveland can recall how much of that sentiment there was then. There was the feeling that the Republican party had sheltered gross abuses for many years, and that the people must find leaders, who should go at these abuses with a zealous moral purpose in a sincere effort for cleaner government and service to the common people.

Similarly when Woodrow Wilson was running for the presidency there was this same spirit of accomplishing reforms of cleaning out the old abuses which gather when a party becomes entrenched in power. These great public movements swept onward with a resistless tide, and they both accomplished grand results, and helped lift the government to a higher place of efficiency and service.

The movement under Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 which broke away from the Republican party of those days because it had become too set and immovable in its old ways, was essentially a democratic movement, only that group of people could not see that the logical thing for them to do was to come out straight for the Democratic party that represented their real aims. But they accomplished the same result, and their movement elected a Democratic president.

The Democratic campaign of 1924 is going to be dominated by this same reform motive, the same effort to remove abuses, which sentiment controlled the party in 1888 and 1892 and 1912 and 1916. Lincoln It is going to win because it appeals to the popular longing for a government that shall be administered, in the words of Abraham Lincoln, of the people, by the people and for the people. The Republican

PAWHUSKA. — The Pawhuska chapter De Molay will take charge of the city government for one day on Saturday, March 22. The boys who are members of the chapter will fill all of the city offices from mayor to patrolman, will arrest violators of the city ordinances, hold court and fine them, and in every way have charge of the city for the day. The De Molay boys promise that it shall be a hard day for all violators of city ordinances.

LITTLE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA GIVES FINE PERFORMANCE

(By Mildred Jennings)

SHAWNEE.—The brilliant musical performances indeed, were those given last evening and yesterday afternoon by the Kansas City Little Symphony orchestra at the Convention hall, under the baton of N. De Rubertis. The orchestra exceeded all expectations and received warm applause from the audience. N. De Rubertis proved to be a conductor of dignity, poise and mastery and one who has attained supreme artistry in the art of conducting. Under the influence of his baton the orchestra was at all times a unit of harmony.

At the afternoon concert which was given with special attention to the music memory contest numbers, the audience was for the most part made up of school children, who sat enthralled at the joy of hearing a real symphony orchestra play the numbers which had become a part of their daily lives. Marie Roselli, harpist, delighted them with her harp solo as did also the playing of the twelve year old boy prodigy, Ewing Pottet, whose violin playing was excellent.

A Varied Program.

The evening program offered much variety. In true symphonic form, the offerings of the "French Military March" by Saint Saens, and the unfinished symphony by Schubert, were very satisfying, the familiar Schubert work being given by the orchestra in a thoroughly musically and artistic manner. The Peer Gynt Suite, with the peaceful repose of the "Morning Mood", the melancholy forebodings of the "Death of Asa", the weird character of "Anitra's Dance" and the wild mystery of "In the Hall of the Mountain King", was enthusiastically received, as the audience had no difficulty in grasping the spirit of the excellent interpretation of each mood. The grand climax of the evening's program, was the "Capriccio Espagnole" by Rimsky-Korsakow which displayed not only the conductor's consummate artistry, but the part of each player in making a perfect whole.

The orchestra gave several attractive encores "Gypsy Rondo" by Hayden, and "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" by Gestland, being especially well received. Max Selinsky as violin soloist, won much applause, as did Marie Roselli, who gave another harp number.

The Synthetic Music club under whose auspices the Little Symphony appeared, deserves to be congratulated on the artistic success of the concerts.

Tulsa Civic Clubs Sponsoring Demand For Relation Court

(By the Associated Press)

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 17.—C. E. Hobbs, a property owner of this city has filed with the city commissioners a claim for $12,000 damages which he alleges he has suffered because the city closed Fourteenth street at the Santa Fe railroad crossing. The claim is the outgrowth of months of discussion which finally resulted in the building of a viaduct across the Santa Fe track at Fifteenth street and the closing of Fourteenth street.

No action was taken on the claim but it is generally understood that it will be disallowed by the commissioners and that Hobbs will start suit to collect the amount which he alleges he has been damaged.

Tulsa Citizen is Claimant in Suit Against Railroad

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Okla., March 17.—Tulsa civic organizations have formed an association here to sponsor legislation authorizing a local court of domestic relations. The association is made up of members from the Y. W. C. A., Lions club and American association of University Women. A total of 40 persons are charter members, and a campaign now is on to obtain others.

Judge Summers Hardy, formerly associate justice of the state supreme court, was elected president. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. W. E. Moore, vice-president; Mrs. Ida Bales, second vice-president; Miss Amy Comstock, secretary; Lee Clinton, treasurer.

"Such establishment of a domestic relations court does not necessarily mean the forming of an entirely new court here, with added expense but merely bestows more power on our federal judges of this district," Judge Hardy said.

London Claimed as Traveling Sheriff Of Carter County

(By the Associated Press)

ARDMORE, Okla., March 17.—Carter county claims to have the "most traveled" sheriff in Oklahoma. He is Ewing C. London, former traveling insurance salesman, who was appointed sheriff, following the removal of Buck Garrett, two and one-half years ago.

Since being elected to office in 1922, London has made one trip to Portland, Oregon, two trips to California, one trip to Colorado, one trip to Syracuse, New York, one trip to Washington and one trip to Brownsville, Texas, and more than a score of short trips to Oklahoma cities and towns and points in Texas and Kansas. All of these trips were on official business, the records of the sheriff's office show.

LANGUAGE QUESTION COMPLICATES COURT PROCEDURE

(By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN.—The question whether the Irish language will be used in the courts of Ireland has its side lights, one of which concerns two interpreters.

It is admitted that at present in Irish speaking districts the chances of litigation depend largely on the good faith and accuracy of the interpreters.

At the end of one case, recently, the winner said to the loser: "What did you pay your interpreter?"

"Five pounds," was the reply. "I gave my man ten pounds," said the winner, "and the money was well spent."

President Cosgrave has declared that under present circumstances the bar would not be able to man the bench if a practical knowledge of Irish was obligatory.

To The Voters of Ada:

I take this occasion to again present my candidacy for re-election to the office of Mayor and Commissioner of Public Justice and Safety. As a democrat I have always believed in the old democratic rule that if a man makes good the first term that he is entitled to a second.

During the past two years I have worked consistently for the upbuilding of Ada, and have tried to make it a better place in which to live and rear a family. As an official of the city, I have always done my duty as I saw it, and if I have made any mistakes, it has been of the head and not of the heart. I have refused to be dictated to by any individuals, and have organized the various departments under my supervision for efficient work and not to satisfy either the pleasure or spleen of would be politicians. My one aim has been for good government honest and efficiently maintained.

I call attention of the voters to the fact that there have been no bond issues during my incumbency in office other than the Memorial Hall of which we are justly proud. The city government has been economically run, and the last levy for the expense of running the city, was less than when I took office two years ago.

Attempts have been made to dictate my appointees and to dictate the governmental policies of the City through the police force, but I have always acted in this matter for what I thought was the best interest of the entire city and not to further the ambitions of any particular individual or group of individuals. As a result, a hard fight is being made against me in this campaign and a candidate has been brought out for the purpose of defeating me. All because I tried to serve all the people instead of a few.

If elected, I will continue to serve all the people and I will sincerely appreciate your vote on tomorrow to the end that I may further work for the good of Ada. I feel that the old democratic custom of two terms and my past record entitle me to this.

W. H. FISHER,

Mayor and Candidate for Re-election.

CHAPTER XIX

The apartment was one belonging to the older portion of the house, and had been, in fact, an annex to the great library. The walls were oiled, paneled, and hung with a collection of old prints. There were some easy-chairs, a writing-table, and some well-laden bookcases. There were one or two bronze statues of gladiators, a wonderful study of two wrestlers, no minor ornaments. Sir Timothy plunged at once into what he had to say.

"I promised you, Lady Cynthia, and you, Ledsam," he said, "to divulge exactly the truth as regards these much-talked-of entertainments here. You, Margaret, under present circumstances, are equally interested. You, Wilmore, are Ledsam's friend, and you happen to have an interest in this particular party. Therefore, I am glad to have you all here together. The superficial part of my entertainment you have seen. The part which renders it necessary for me to keep closed doors, I shall now explain. I give prizes here of considerable value for boxing tests which are conducted under rules of our own. One is due to take place in a very few minutes. The contests vary in character, but I may say that the chief officials of the National Sporting club are usually to be found here, only, of course, in an unofficial capacity. The difference between the contests arranged by me, and others, is that my men are here to fight. They use sometimes an illegal weight of glove and they sometimes hurt one another. If any two of the boxing fraternity have a grudge against one another, and that often happens, they are permitted here to fight it out, under the strictest control as regards fairness, but practically without gloves at all. You heard of the accident, for instance, to Norris? That happened in my gymnasium. He was knocked out by Burgin. It was a wonderful fight.

"However, I pass on. There is another class of contest which frequently takes place here. Two boxers place themselves unreservedly in my hands. The details of the match are arranged without their knowledge. They come into the ring without knowing whom they are going to fight. Sometimes they never know, for my men wear masks. Then we have private matches. There is one tonight. Lord Meadowson and I have a wager of a thousand guineas. He has brought tonight from the East end a boxer who, according to the terms of our bet, has never before engaged in a professional contest. I have brought an amateur under the same conditions. The weight is within a few pounds the same, neither has ever seen the other, only in this case the fight is with regulation gloves and under Queensberry rules."

"Who is your amateur, Sir Timothy?" Wilmore asked harshly.

"Your brother, Mr. Wilmore," was the prompt reply. "You shall see the fight if I have your promise not to attempt in any way to interfere."

Wilmore rose to his feet.

"Do you mean to tell me," he demanded, "that my brother has been deceived here, kept here against his will, to provide amusement for your guests?"

"Mr. Wilmore, I beg that you will be reasonable," Sir Timothy expostulated. "I saw your brother box at his gymnasium in Holborn. My agent made him the offer of this fight. One of my conditions had to be that he came here to train and that whilst he was here he held no communication whatever with the outside world. My trainer has ideas of his own and this he insists upon. Your brother in the

A TALE OF ADVENTURE

"Scaramouche," now showing at the McSwain theatre, is a Rex Ingram production for Metro founded on Rafael Sabatini's novel, and adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck. The cast, which includes 10,000 players in the mob scenes, is headed by Ramon Novarro as Scaramouche, Alice Terry as ALINE and Lewis Stone as the MARQUIS DE LA TOUR D'AZYR. The story follows in fiction form:

"You have killed him La Tour! He who never wore a sword, who was already half a priest. You slew him because you feared him!"

Andre-Louis Moreau, holding in his arms the lifeless body of his friend, Philippe, pierced through the vitals by a duelist's rapier, turned flashing eyes on the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr. The Marquis flicked his scented lace handkerchief, red with the stain from his sword point, and glanced down.

"Of course I killed him. I told you he had a too dangerous gift of eloquence. In troublesome times like this our order cannot suffer this stinking revolutionary cant."

"Then kill me, too!" and the youth sprang to his feet fiercely. "Kill me, and complete your coward's work!"

Whatever might have followed this outburst was averted by M. Chabrilane, the Marquis's companion who forcibly led La Tour away. Andre-Louis Moreau knelt again be-and acquiesced. He was at first reluctant to deal with as regards this condition, and he did, in fact, I believe, Mr. Ledsam, pay a visit to your office, with the object of asking you to become an intermediary between him and his relatives."

"He began a letter to me," Francis interposed, "and then mysteriously disappeared."

"The mystery is easily explained," Sir Timothy continued. "My trainer, Roger Hagon, a Varsity blue, and the best heavyweight of his year, occupies the chambers above yours. He saw from the window the arrival of Reginald Wilmore—which was according to instructions, as they were to come down to Hatch End together—went down the stairs to meet him, and, to cut a long story short, fetched him out of your office, Ledsam, without allowing him to finish his letter. This absolute isolation seems a curious condition, perhaps, but Hagon insists upon it, and I can assure you that he knows his business. The mystery, as you have termed it, of his disappearance that morning, is that he went upstairs with Hagon for several hours to undergo a medical examination, instead of leaving the building forthwith."

"Querier thing I never thought of Hagon," Francis remarked. "As a matter of fact, I never see him in the Temple, and I thought that he had left."

"May I ask," Wilmore intervened, "when my brother will be free to return to his home?"

"Tonight, directly the fight is over," Sir Timothy replied. "Should he be successful, he will take with him a sum of money sufficient to start him in any business he chooses to enter."

Wilmore frowned slightly.

"But surely," he protested, "that would make him a professional pugilist?"

"Not at all," Sir Timothy replied. "For one thing, the match is a private one in a private house, and for another the money is a gift. There is no purse. If your brother loses, he gets nothing. Will you see the fight, Mr. Wilmore?"

"Yes, I will see it," was the somewhat reluctant assent.

"You will give me your word not to interfere in any way?"

"I shall not interfere," Wilmore promised. "If they are wearing regulation gloves, and the weights are about equal, and the conditions are what you say, it is the last thing I should wish to do."

"Capital!" Sir Timothy exclaimed. "Now to pass on. There is one other feature of my entertainments concerning which I have something to say—a series of performances which takes place on my launch at odd times. There is one fixed for tonight. I can say little about it except that it is unusual. I am going to ask you, Lady Cynthia, and you, Ledsam, to witness it. When you have seen that, you know everything. Then you and I, Ledsam, can call one another's hands. I shall have something else to say to you, but that is outside the doings here."

"Are we to see the fight in the gymnasium?" Lady Cynthia inquired.

Sir Timothy shook his head.

"I do not allow women there under any conditions," he said. "You and Margaret had better stay here whilst that takes place. It will probably be over in twenty minutes. It will be time then for us to find our way to the launch. After that, if you have any appetite, supper. I will order some caviare sandwiches for you," Sir Timothy went on, ringing the bell, "and some wine."

Lady Cynthia smiled.

"It is really a very wonderful party," she murmured.

Their host ushered the two men across the hall, now comparatively deserted, for every one had settled down to his or her quieter amusement—down a long passage, through a private door which he unlocked with a Yale key, and into the gymnasium.

There were less than fifty spectators seated around the ring, and Francis, glancing at them hastily, fancied that he recognized nearly every one of them. There was Baker, a judge, a couple of actors, Lord Meadowson, the most renowned of sporting peers, and a dozen who followed in his footsteps; a little man who had once been amateur champion in the bantam class, and who was now considered the finest judge of boxing in the world; a theatrical manager, the present amateur boxing champion, and a sprinkling of others. Sir Timothy and his companions took their chairs amidst a buzz of welcome. Almost immediately, the man who was in charge of the proceedings, and whose name was Harrison, rose from his place.

"Gentlemen," he said, "this is a sporting contest, but one under usual rules and usual conditions. An amateur, who tips the scales at twelve stone seven, who has never engaged in a boxing contest in his life, is matched against a young man from a different sphere of life, who intends to adopt the ring as his profession, but who has never as yet fought in public. Names, gentlemen, as you know, are seldom mentioned here. I will only say that the first in the ring is the nominee of our friend and host, Sir Timothy Brass; second comes the nominee of Lord Meadowson."

Wilmore, notwithstanding his pre-knowledge, gave a little gasp. The young man who stood now within a few yards of him, carelessly swinging his gloves in his hand, was without a doubt his missing brother. He looked well and in the pink of condition; not only well but entirely confident and at his ease. His opponent, on the other hand, a sturdier man, a few inches shorter, was nervous and awkward, though none the less determined-looking. Sir Timothy rose and whispered side the body of his slain friend, and his voice choked with emotion. "It was your eloquence he feared in you he shall fear in me. Your eloquence shall be my heritage from you. He shall pay, Philippe! On your poor dead body I swear it. God, how he shall pay!"

Francis, glad of a moment or two's solitude in which to rearrange his somewhat distorted sensations, found an empty space in the stern of the launch and stood leaning over the rail. His pulses were still tingling with the indubitable excitement of the last half-hour. It was all there, even now, before his eyes like a cinematograph picture—the duel between those two men, a duel of knowledge, of strength, of science, of courage. From beginning to end, there had been no moment when Francis had felt that he was looking on at what was in any way a degrading or immoral spectacle. Each man had fought in his way to win. Young Wilmore, graceful as a panther, with a keen, joyous desire of youth for supremacy written in his face and in the dogged lines of his mouth; the budding champion from the East end less graceful, perhaps, but with even more strength and at least as much determination, had certainly done his best to justify his selection. There were no points to be scored. There had been no undue feinting, no holding, few of the tricks of the professional ring. It was a fight to a finish, or until Harrison gave the word. And the better man had won. But even that knock-out blow which Reggie Wilmore had delivered after a wonderful feat, had had little that was cruel in it. There was something beautiful almost in the strength and grace with which it had been delivered—the breathless eagerness, the waiting, the end.

He heard Sir Timothy's voice a few yards away, and turned to look at him. He had just come from below, and had paused opposite a man who had been standing a little apart from the others, one of the few who was wearing an overcoat, as though he felt the cold. In the background were the two servants who had guarded the gangway.

"Mr. Manuel Loto," Sir Timothy said—"or shall I say Mr. Shepland?"—my invited guests are welcome. I have only one method of dealing with uninvited ones."

The two men suddenly stepped forward. Shepland made no protest, attempted no struggle. They lifted him off his feet as though he were a baby, and a moment later there was a splash in the water. They threw a life-belt after him.

"Always humane, you see," Sir Timothy remarked, as he leaned over the side. "Ah! I see that even in his overcoat our friend is swimmer enough to reach the bank. You find our methods harsh, Ledsam?" he asked, turning a challenging gaze towards the latter.

Francis, who had been watching Shepland come to the surface, shrugged his shoulders. He delayed answering for a moment while he watched the detective, disdaining the life-belt, swim to the opposite shore.

"I suppose that under the circumstances," Francis said, "he was prepared to take his risk."

"You should know best about that," Sir Timothy rejoined. "I wonder whether you would mind looking after Lady Cynthia? I shall be busy for a few moments."

Francis stepped across the deck towards where Lady Cynthia had been sitting by her host's side. They had passed into the mouth of a tree-hung strip of the river. The engine was suddenly shut off. A gong was sounded. There was a murmur, almost a sob of relief, as the little sprinkling of men and women rose hastily to their feet and made their way towards the companion-way. Downstairs, in the saloon, with its white satinwood panels and rows of swing chairs, heavy curtains were drawn across the port-holes, all outside light was shut out from the place. At the further end, raised slightly from the floor, was a sanded circle. Sir Timothy made his way to one of the pillars by its side and turned around to face the little company of guests. His voice, though it seemed scarcely raised above a whisper, was extraordinarily clear and distinct. Even Francis, who, with Lady Cynthia, had found seats only just inside the door, could hear every word he said.

"My friends," he began, "you have often before been my guests at such small fights as we have been able to arrange in as unorthodox a manner as possible between professional boxers. There has been some novelty about them, but on the last occasion I think it was generally observed that they had become a little too professional, a little ultra-scientific. There was something which they lacked. With that something I am hoping to provide you tonight. Thank you, Sir Edgar," he murmured leaning down towards his neighbor.

He held his cigarette in the flame of a match which the other had kindled. Francis, who was watching intently, was puzzled at the expression with which for a moment, as he straightened himself, Sir Timothy glanced down the room, seeking for Lady Cynthia's eyes. In a sense it was as though he were seeking for something he needed—approbation, sympathy, understanding.

"Our hobby, as you know, has been really," he continued, "that is what we have not always been able to achieve. Tonight I offer you reality. There are two men here, one an East end boxer, the other an Italian until lately associated with an itinerant vehicle of musical production. These two men have not outlived sensation as I fancy so many of us have. They hate one another to the death. I forget their surnames, but Giuseppe has stolen Jim's girl, is living with her at the present moment, and proposes to keep her. Jim has sworn to have the lives of both of them. Jim's career, in its way, is interesting to us. He has spent already six years in prison for manslaughter, and a year for a brutal assault upon a constable. Giuseppe was tried in his native country for a particularly fiendish murder, and escaped, owing, I believe, to some legal technicality. That, however, has nothing to do with the matter. These men have sworn to fight to the death, and the girl, I understand, is willing to return to Jim if he should be successful, or to remain with Giuseppe if he should show himself able to retain her. The fight between these men, my friends, has been transferred from Seven Dials for your entertainment. It will take place before you here and now."

There was a little shiver amongst the audience. Francis, almost to his horror, was unable to resist the feeling of queer excitement which stole through his veins. A few yards away, Lady Isabel seemed to have become transformed. She was leaning forward in her chair, her eyes glowing, her lips parted, rejuvenated, dehumanized. Francis' immediate companion, however, surprised him. Her eyes were fixed intently upon Sir Timothy's. She seemed to have been weighing every word he had spoken. There was none of that hungry pleasure in her face which shone from the other woman's and was reflected in the faces of many of the others. She seemed to be bracing herself for a shock. Sir Timothy looked toward the door which opened upon the sanded space.

"You can bring your men along," he directed.

One of the attendants promptly made his appearance. He was holding tightly by the arm a man of apparently thirty years of age, shabbily dressed, barefooted, without collar or necktie, with a mass of black hair which looked as though it had escaped the care of any barber for many weeks. His complexion was sallow; he had high cheekbones and a receding chin, which gave him rather the appearance of a fox. He shrank a little from the lights as though they hurt his eyes, and all the time he looked furtively back to the door, through which in a moment or two his rival was presently escorted. The latter was a young man of stockier build, ill-conditioned, and with the brutal face of the lowest of his class. Two of his front teeth were missing, and there was a livid mark on the side of his cheek. He looked neither to the right nor to the left. His eyes were fixed upon the other man, and they looked death.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL FINED FOR COURT VIOLATION

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Okla., March 17.—J. J. Rogers, principal of the high school at Mounds, Oklahoma, is out $45 because he failed to keep a promise with a local judge.

Rogers was hurrying to Tulsa in a motor car with several members of his basketball team for a game. A county officer arrested him for speeding.

The principal explained his hurry to Judge O'Brien of common pleas court here, and the judge released him but assessed the court costs, amounting to $12. Rogers told the judge he did not have sufficient cash with him to pay the costs, but would give him a check. This was against the court rules and the check was refused. Rogers then promised the judge he would return within two hours with the cash.

Five days elapsed and the school principal was back in court, but not until an officer had been sent for him.

Rogers explained he had returned that day, but that nobody was in the court room. The judge declared he and his clerk had remained in the court until 6 o'clock that night.

Then Judge O'Brien told Rogers something about court rules, ending with a "$25 fine and costs." The total was $45.

PAWHUSKA.—Luke Johnson, a senior of the Pawhuska high school, will represent this city at the district oratorical contest to be held at Tulsa, March 28.

He held his cigarette in the flame of a match which the other had kindled. ## SCHOOL EDITION CLAIMS COMMENT

Favorable Opinion Passed on Paper Telling of County Schools

Here are two opinions of the educational editions issued by The News last week.

Dr. A. P. Bourland of Winthrop college, South Carolina, who is well known here through two lecture courses at summer terms of the college during the past few years, and who as executive secretary of the Southern Education Board and in other responsible positions has done much for the advancement of the cause of education in the south, writes:

"My Dear Mr. Norrell: The educational edition of the Ada Weekly News is a revelation. Within seventeen years your county has developed a more complete educational equipment than you will find in many, many counties in the original thirteen states."

"It is astonishing when one thinks of the ease with which the unfettered American builds institutions into the county system of government and civilization. The News, therefore, has stirred a big volume of thought, all mingled with wonder that so much could be done in so short a time. This has been done, too, in other counties throughout the state. The whole state, therefore, stands as a marvel of development. The possibilities of American energy have seldom found a more telling illustration."

"We rejoice with you and congratulate you from the depths of our hearts. I know what a large part you have had in all this development. It fills me with pride to think your work and that of our dear friends, the Hickmads. And of course along with you has gone your devoted companion, who has had an incalculable share in this development."

Here is an expression from M. A. Nash, state superintendent:

"Dear Mr. Little: We take this opportunity of congratulating you and the educational forces of Pontotoc county on the recent educational issue of The Ada News. I am sure this service will be of great benefit to the state schools of that section of the state. On behalf of the State Department of Education, I wish to thank you for this contribution."

"You have one of the best county superintendents in the state, and one of the best college presidents in the Southwest. I am glad indeed to note your continued efforts to cooperate with all forces working for better schools in Oklahoma."

LONDON.—Valentines have vanished from the stationery shops of London. Those ardent admirers who still keep up the Victorian custom of sending their ladyloves beribboned bits of printed sentiments must have had to search the side streets this year for the fashionable shops contained none.

Stationers explain that modern man is to blame for the passing of the printed piffle. She votes and smokes and golfs just like the men folks do and being a user of somewhat virile slang the modern maid sees nothing but silliness, it would seem in the sentiments that used to be taken so seriously in the mid-Februarys of the age of innocence.

Somer Jones Replies To Charges

It is charged that I favor pool halls and that my election as Mayor would mean the selection of certain individuals for appointive offices. Refuting these charges, I will state that I do not consider pool halls a necessary or legitimate business, nor do I recognize them as a wholesome diversion. Every one should know that it is not within the power of the Mayor to establish pool halls within the city, no matter who is elected. I will say once for all, there will be no pool halls in Ada, unless voted back by the people, if I am your Mayor.

Regarding the appointment of certain men to office, I have given this but little thought, have no particular person in mind, but shall cooperate with the other Commissioners in making the best possible selections, consistent with the best interests of the city and its people.

As a last word before the city election tomorrow: I desire to thank all the people of Ada for the courteous treatment accorded me while soliciting support for the office of Mayor and Commissioner of Public Justice and Safety. I have made a clean race and, as so far as I know, my worthy opponents have done likewise, and whether I am elected or not I assure one and all that I bear no grievance on account of any phase of the campaign. I shall be especially grateful to those who may express their confidence in me by their votes tomorrow.

Several cars bearing "VOTE FOR SOMER JONES" banners will be running all day and those desiring to vote, whether for me or the other fellow, are welcome to ride. Call phone No. 144 and a car will call for you.

Power When You Want It

There is no storage of electrical energy. When the customer contracts with the central station for a supply of electrical energy for his factory, he is relieved of all further responsibility concerning his power needs. That responsibility is assumed by the service company.

The industry operator can devote his time and energy to his own problems—problems of manufacture and production, purchase of materials and supplies, and distribution of his product to the market.

Once the machinery for the transformation of electrical into mechanical energy is installed, no further preparation is necessary. When it is desired to make use of the energy in manufacturing operations, there is no need for notifying the power company to that effect. All that is necessary is to throw the switch that turns electric current into the circuit, and proceed with your work.

Let us tell you how to apply electric service to your power needs.

WHY LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS HAVE

MADE GOOD IN FIELD OF BANKING

By WARREN S. STONE
Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers

"I HAVE often been asked: 'Why did the Brotherhood go in for banking?' To which I reply, 'Why not?'"

"For more than fifty years the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has been in business. Its 92,000 members were pioneers in 'thrift' long before systematic saving became a national movement. Its insurance and pension funds run into millions of dollars annually. It owns and operates a 14-story office building in Cleveland and is building another of twenty-two stories. The entrance into the banking field, therefore, is not so much a novel as a logical development.

"After all, in the fundamentals of character required the engineer and the banker are not so far apart. Both are professions of the utmost precision. The engineer, bringing his train into the station on the scheduled second, utilizes time; the banker balancing millions to the fraction of a cent employs money. Like the banker, too, the engineer must make decisions every day vitally affecting the lives of others; if in doubt he must proceed cautiously and err always on the side of safety. Both deal with realities from different cab-windows, one hand on the throttle, the other conveniently near the brake."

CHINESE BANKER SEEKS MEANS TO CHECK INROADS OF OPIUM

TSINGTAO China—Chinese clerks who sink away from their desks in business hours and scuttle over to an opium den to smoke the drug are part evidence of the local indulgence in the habit.

A prominent banker relates that he now compels his employees to report for duty at six o'clock in the morning, thereby inducing them to retire at an early hour at night. The clerks are excused for several hours in the forenoon, when the dives are closed.

Other employers are considering giving this system a trial. The dive keepers are not concerned, and say such restrictions will be easy to beat.

JAPAN BUSY WITH PLANS TO BUILD AIRSHIP FLEET

TOKIO—The first Japan-made battleplane was completed recently by the Mitsubishi Aviation Works at Nagoya and shortly will be put through its tests.

British aviators and engineers have assisted in the establishment and operation of the plant at Nagoya, which the Japanese Army hopes to make its principal source of supply for fighting planes in the future.

The new battleplane carries a 450 horsepower Napier-Lion engine, has a wing spread of 40 feet, and is armed with Lewis machine-guns. Its tests are successful the army will order several more of the same.

VIOLA GWYN

By George Barr McCutcheon

Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Company, Inc.

"Well—not so much about me and Barry as about the way I— Oh, you needn't smile, mother. He isn't going to make any fuss over Barry. He told me in plain words that he did not care whether I married him or not— or ran away with him, for that matter. And now I have something I want to say to you. We may as well have it out now as any other time. I am going to marry Barry Lapelle. There was a ring of defiance in her voice.

Rachel Gwyn looked at her steadily for a moment before responding to this out-and-out challenge.

"I think it would be only fair of you," she began, levelly, "to tell Mr. Lapelle just what he may expect to case he marries you. Tell him that you will never receive a penny or an inch of land when I die. I shall cut you off completely. Tell him that. It may make some difference in his calculations."

Viola flared. "You have no right to insinuate that he wants to marry me for your money or your lands. He wants me for myself—he wants me because he loves me."

"I grant you that," said Mrs. Gwyn, nodding her head slowly. "He would be a fool not to want you—now. You are young, and you are very pretty. But after he has been married a few years and you have become an old song to him, he will feel differently about money and lands. I know Mr. Lapelle and his stripe. They run through with love as they run through with money—quickly. And when he has wasted all his love, Barry Lapelle will still want money to waste. Be good enough to make him understand that he will never have a dollar of my money to waste—never, my child, even though his wife were starving to death. I mean it!"

"Then," cried Viola, hotly, "you are the most unnatural, cruel mother that ever—"

"Stop! You will not find me a cruel and inhuman mother when you come creeping back to my door after Barry Lapelle has cast you off. I have nothing more to say."

"But I have something more to say," cried the girl. "I shall tell him all you have said, and I shall marry him in spite of everything. I am not afraid of starving. I don't want a penny of father's money. He did not choose to give it to me; he gave half of all he possessed to his son by another woman, he ignored me, he cut me off as if I were a—"

"Be careful, my child," warned Rachel Gwyn, her eyes narrowing. "I cannot permit you to question his acts or his motives. He did what he thought was best—and we—I mean you and I—must abide by his decision."

"I am not questioning your husband's act," said Viola, stubbornly. "I am questioning my father's act."

Mrs. Gwyn started. For a second or two her eyes wavered and then fell. One corner of her mouth worked curiously. Then, without a word, she turned away from the girl and left the room.

Viola, greatly offended, heard her ascend the stairs and close a door; then her slow, heavy tread on the boards above. Suddenly the girl's anger melted. The tears rushed to her eyes.

"Oh, what a beast I was to hurt her like that," she murmured, forgetting the harsh, unfeeling words that had aroused her ire, thinking only of the wonder and pain that had lurked in her mother's eyes. "The only person in all the world who has ever really loved me—poor, poor old mother." She stared through her tears at the flames, a little pucker of uncertainty clouding her brow. "I am sure Barry never, never can love me as she does, or be as kind and good to me," she mused. "I wonder—I wonder if what she says is true about men."

Later on, at supper, she abruptly asked:

"Mother, how old is Kenneth?" Rachel Gwyn, started out of a profound reverie, gave her daughter a sharp, inquiring look before answering.

"I do not know. Twenty-five or six, I suppose."

"Did you know his mother?"

"Yes," after a perceptible pause.

"How long after she died were you and father married?"

"Your father had been a widower nearly two years."

"Why doesn't Kenneth spell his name as we do?"

"Kenneth was brought up to spell it in the new-fangled way, I guess," was Rachel Gwyn's reply. "You need not ask me questions about the family, Viola. Your father never spoke of them. He was a strange man. He kept things to himself. I do not recollect ever hearing him mention his first wife or his son or any other member of his family."

"I should think you would have been a little bit curious. I know I should."

"I knew all that was necessary for me to know," said Rachel, somewhat brusquely.

"Where did you first meet father?"

She regretted the question the instant the words were out of her mouth. The look of pain—almost of pleading—in her mother's eyes caused her to reproach herself.

"Forgive me, mother," she cried. "I did not stop to think. I know it hurts you to talk about him, and I should have—"

"Be good enough to remember in the future," said Rachel Gwyn, sternly, her eyes now cold and forbidding. She arose and stalked to the kitchen window, where she stood for a long time looking out into the gathering darkness.

"Clear the table, Hattie," said Viola, presently. "We are through."

Then she walked over to her mother and timidly laid an arm across her shoulder.

"I am sorry, mother," she said.

To this Mrs. Gwyn did not reply. She merely observed: "We have had very little sleep in the last six and thirty hours. Come to bed, child."

CHAPTER IX

A Roadside Meeting.

Kenneth remained at the tavern for a month. He did not go near the house of his stepmother. He saw her once walking along the main street, and followed her with his eyes until she disappeared into a store. The business of taking over the property, signing the necessary papers, renewing an agreement with the man who farmed his land on the west, taking account of all live stock and other chattels, occupied his time for the better part of a fortnight. He spent two days and a night at the little farmhouse, listening with ever increasing satisfaction to the enthusiastic prophecies of the farmer, a stout individual named Jones whose faith in the new land was surpassed only by his ability to till it.

Kenneth found it difficult to think of his father's wife as Rachel Gwyn. To him, she was unalterably Rachel Carter. Time and again he caught himself up barely in time to avoid using the unknown name in the presence of others. The possibility that he might some day inadvertently blurt it out in conversation with Viola caused him a great deal of uneasiness and concern. He realized that he would have to be on his guard all of the time.

There seemed to be no immediate prospect of such a calamity, however. Since the memorable encounter in the thicket he had not had an opportunity to speak to the girl. For reasons of her own she purposely avoided him. There could be no doubt about that. A week or so after his returning from the farm Kenneth saw her riding off on horseback with two other young women and a youth named Hayes. She passed within ten feet of him but did not deign to notice him, although her companions bowed somewhat eagerly.

She was a graceful and accomplished horsewoman. He watched her out of the corner of his eye as she cantered down the street, sitting the spirited sorrel mare with all the ease and confidence of a practiced rider. Later on, urged by a spirit of restlessness, he ordered Zachariah to saddle his horse and bring him around to the front of the tavern, where he mounted and set out for a ride up the Wild Cat road. Two or three miles above town he met Hayes and the two young women returning. The look of consternation that passed among them did not escape him. He smiled a trifle maliciously as he rode on, for now he knew what had become of the missing member of the party.

Half a mile farther on he came upon

Viola and Barry Lapelle, riding slowly side by side through the narrow lane. He drew off to one side to allow them to pass, doffing his beaver ceremoniously.

Lapelle's friendly greeting did not surprise him, for the two had seen a great deal of each other, and at no time had there been anything in the lover's manner to indicate that Viola had confided to him the story of the meeting in the thicket. But he was profoundly astonished when the girl favored him with a warm, gay smile and cried out a cheery "How do you do, Kenneth!"

"Better turn around and ride back with us, Kenny," said Barry, politely but not graciously.

"I am on my way to the Wild Cat to see a man on business," said Kenneth, lamely.

"Kenny?" repeated Viola, puckering her brow. "Where have I heard that name before? I seem to remember—oh, as if it were a thousand years ago. Do they call you Kenny for short?"

"It grew up with me," he replied.

"Ever since I can remember, my folks—"

He broke off in the middle of the sentence, confronted by a disconcerting thought. Could it be possible that somewhere in Viola's brain—or rather in Minda's baby brain—that familiar name had stamped itself? Why not? If it had been impressed upon his own baby brain, why not in a less degree upon hers?

He lifted his hat and rode off. He had gone not more than twenty rods when he heard a masculine shout from behind; turning, he discovered that the couple were still standing where he had left them. Lapelle called out:

"Your sister wants to have a word with you."

She rode swiftly up to where he was waiting.

"I just want to let you know that I intend to tell mother about meeting Barry out here today," she said, smiling. "I shall not tell her that we had planned it in advance, however. We did plan it, so if you want to run and tell her yourself, you may do so. It will make no—"

"Is that all you wanted to say to me, Viola?" he interrupted.

For a moment she faced him rebelliously, hot words on her lips. Then a surprising change came over her. Her eyes quailed under the justifiable scorn in his. She hung her head.

"No," she said, miserably. "I thought it was all, but it isn't. I want to say that I am sorry I said what I did."

He watched the scarlet flood sweep over her cheeks and then as swiftly fade. It was a sight of triumph, and yet he had no thrill of triumph. "It's— it's all right, Viola," he stammered, awkwardly. "Don't think anything more about it. We will consider it unsaid."

"No, we'll not," said she, looking up. "But I am sorry, Kenneth. Will you try to forget it?"

He shook his head. "Never! Forgetting the bitter would mean that I would also have to give up the sweet," said he, gallantly.

"I must be going now," she said, biting her lip. "Good-by—Kenny." A faint frown clouded her brow after she had uttered the name. "I must ask mother if she remembers hearing father speak of you as Kenny."

"Say, Viola," came an impatient shout from Barry Lapelle, "are you going to take all day?"

It was plain to be seen that the young man was out of temper. Kenneth could not repress a chuckle.

"Better hurry along," he said, grimly, "or he'll take your head off."

She rode off in high dudgeon and he was left to curse his ill-timed jest. What a blundering fool he had been! Her first, timid little advance—and he had met it with boorish, clownish wit!

Dusk was falling when Kenneth rode slowly into the town again. He had reached a decision during that lonely ride. He would not remain in Lafayette. He foresaw misery and unhappiness for himself if he stayed there—for, be it he declared, he was in love with Viola Gwyn. No, worse than that, he was in love with Minda Carter, and therein lay all the bitterness that filled his soul. He could never have her. Even though she cast off the ardent Lapelle, still he could not have her for his own. The bars were up, and it was now beyond his power to lower them. And so, with this resolve firmly fixed in his mind, he gave himself up to a strange sort of despair.

The incomprehensible and incredible had come to pass. He had fallen in love with Viola Gwyn at first sight, that stormy night at Striker's. The discovery that she was his own half-sister had, of course, deluded his senses—temporarily, but now he realized that the strange, primitive instincts of man had not been deceived and would not be denied.

His blood had known the truth from the instant he first laid eyes upon the lovely stranger. Since that first night there had been revelations. First of all, Viola was the flesh and blood of an evil woman, and that woman his mortal foe. Notwithstanding her own innocence and purity, it was inconceivable that he should ever think of taking her to himself as wife. Secondly, he was charged with a double secret that must forever stand between him and her: the truth about her mother and the truth about herself.

There was but one thing left for him to do—go away. He would wind up his affairs at once and put longing and temptation as far behind him as possible.

His wanderings had carried him through dark, winding cowpaths and lanes to within a stone's throw of Jack Trentman's shanty, standing alone like the parish it was, on the steep bank of the river near the ferry.

whether in Antwerp, Amsterdam or Hamburg.

A DELEHANTY HEARS THE CALL AGAIN

Two glimpses of Jim Delehanty as he was in his prime.

It has been a long time since the Delehanty Boys, once forming the most interesting family in baseball, have broken into the diamond limelight. But now comes Brother James to the footlights in the role of umpire in the American association. Jim, once star second baseman for Detroit, ended his playing days with Beaumont in the Texas league in 1915. He is one of six brothers, five of whom played in the big show.

Hickman Urges Preparations For Second School Semester

The first semester of the public schools of the city will close Friday, January 18th and the second semester will begin Monday morning, January 21st. The week closing January 18th will be devoted to examinations, classifications, and enrollment for the opening of the second semester on Monday following, according to Supt. J. E. Hickman.

In the Ward schools next week, examinations and tests for standing and rating of pupils will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 15th and 16th. Pupils will not be required to report at buildings on Thursday, this day being necessary for the teachers to complete the gradings of papers and the making up of report cards and semester reports. On Friday, January 18th, school will be in session beginning at the usual time, for the purpose of classifying any pupils who have not already been classified, the assignment of lessons for the beginning of the semester Monday and in making reports to pupils of their standing. It will greatly facilitate matters pertaining to the beginning of the new semester work, if all children who have not been previously enrolled in the schools of the city will report at the building where they are to attend school, get their classifications, enrollment cards and book lists and provide themselves with books and supplies before Monday.

Parents should see that this is done, otherwise, it may be necessary to defer enrollment until after 3:30 p. m. Monday. There is ample time during the week from January 14th to 18th to attend to all these preliminaries and the teachers will be on the job at all times for this purpose, Hickman stated.

The same general program will be carried out at the High school, Mr. Hill, assisted by such of his teachers as is necessary, will be ready beginning Monday, January 14th, to advise with parents and students regarding the classification of any new students enrolling in the high school and will be ready at any time during the week to reclassify students now enrolled. Hickman urged that students attend to this matter sometime during the week and do not defer it until Friday. If present plans can be carried out, and this is possible only with the cooperation of patrons and students, every detail of the work will be completed by Friday afternoon, and everything in readiness for the opening of the second semester work on Monday with no loss of time.

Attention has already been called to the compulsory attendance law, which compels attendance of all pupils between the ages of 8 and 18 for two thirds of the time school is in session. For the benefit of those who may not be familiar with this law, attention is called to the following excerpts from the school law.

Article XIII.

Section 240. Compulsory Period—Duties of Parents: "It shall be unlawful for any parent, guardian or custodian, living in the state of Oklahoma, to neglect or refuse to cause or compel any person or persons who are or may be under his control as children or wards to attend and comply with the rules of some public, private, or other schools unless other means of education are provided, for sixty-six and two-thirds percent of the term the schools of the district are in session, which shall apply to all children of the district over the age of eight and under the age of eighteen, unless they are prevented by mental or physical disability, the question of disability to be determined by the school district board of education upon a certificate of duly licensed and practicing physician; provided, however, that this requirement shall not apply to a child between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years who is (1) regularly and lawfully employed and has satisfactorily completed the work of the eighth grade of public schools or its equivalent, or (2) who has satisfactorily completed the full course of instruction provided by the public schools of the district where he resides." (Sec. 1, S. B. 167, S. L. 1919).

The penalty upon conviction for non compliance with the requirements of this section is punishment as provided by law for the punishment of those guilty of misdemeanors. There are some two hundred children in this school district who have not enrolled in the public schools, or the training school of the Teachers College, whose parents have already violated the provisions of this law and are subject to the penalty provided. It will be absolutely necessary for these to begin school on January 21st and attend regularly without the loss of a day to in any measure satisfy the requirements of the statute above cited. Beginning January 21st, the Board of Education will enforce the law, even if court procedure is necessary to do it, Hickman said.

This evening, as on two or three earlier occasions, he had been urged by Barry to come to the shanty and try his luck at poker. He had steadfastly declined these invitations. Trentman's place was known far and wide as a haven into which "cleaned out" river gamblers sailed in the hope of recovering at least enough of their fortunes to enable them to return to more productive fields down the reaches of the big river.

Whirling, he made out the lank shadow of a man leaning against a tree close by.

"Good evening," he muttered in some confusion, conscious of a sense of guilt in being caught in the act of spying.

"I've been follerin' you fer quite a ways," observed the unknown. "Guess you don't remember me. My name is Stain, Isaac Stain."

"I remember you quite well," said Kenneth, stiffly. "May I inquire why you have been following me, Mr. Stain?"

Tulca City Club to Erect Radio Broadcast Station

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Jan. 19.—Establishment of a public radio broadcasting station here proposed by the Tulsa City Club, is under way and may be completed within the month, according to R. W. Burkhardt, radio expert and member of the organization.

The station will cost approximately $5,000 and will be the largest in this section of the country, the club has announced. There is only one other section here now, and it is owned by a private individual. The present station is WJAL and it is operated by Sam Naylor, official of an electric company.

The City Club will have charge of the station and will put it in operation as soon as it can be installed. It was announced. Programs have been arranged and much of the local talent has been consulted in regard to scheduling programs.

Illiteracy in French Army Points to Failure of Schools

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS.—France has been credited with the possession of an excellent system of education, but faith in it received a rude shock recently when the literacy statistics of two infantry regiments recruited in 1923, were given out.

One-third of the young men gathered largely from the farming districts of the republic, could neither read nor write. Many of the total of 700 did not know a treaty of peace had been signed after the war, and few could tell who made the laws for their country.

Germans to Study Geography

BONN.—An Ibero-American institute of exploration has been established here by Professor Quelle. Professor Sapper has also established a South American institute at Wuerzburg. These two institutes will deal especially with the geography and political economy of South America.

London Wars on Narcotics

LONDON.—The efforts of Scotland Yard authorities to stamp out illicit traffic in narcotics are proving successful. It was announced during the course of a case at Marlborough Police Court that, thanks to the strenuous police campaign, the traffic in London is being suppressed.

Many captures of "traffickers" have recently been made and scores of prosecutions in police courts have been the means of checking the sale of the drugs.

It's the KIND of Feed—NOT the Amount

A WELL fed horse from the standpoint of quality may be in poor condition. This is so because just a monotonous diet of oats or corn with hay fails to keep him in real fine shape.

Dry, tasteless oats are not appetizing and generally only partially digested.

Horses that are fed in the cities in this fashion, and never are turned out on pasture for a few weeks each summer, rapidly lose their strength and vigor. They die much earlier than horses which are given a variety of feed. This is because the animals' bodies demand certain things, which cannot be supplied in oats and corn.

Purina O-Molene has the necessary variety.

O-Molene is not only more appetizing than ordinary feeds but it is more digestible. It takes less of O-Molene than the usual grain rations because it is completely balanced and does not have too much of one ingredient and not enough of another.

THE PLAN IN BRIEF

- Purposes
1. That the United States shall immediately enter the Permanent Court of International Justice, under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.
  2. That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States shall offer to extend its present cooperation with the League and participate in the work of the League as a body of mutual counsel under conditions which
  3. Substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in Articles X and XVI
  4. Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine.
  5. Accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the Treaty of Versailles except by Act of Congress.
  6. Propose that membership in the League should be opened to all nations.
  7. Provide for the continuing development of international law.

To the Voters of the City of Ada:

It has been impossible for me to see all of you personally and solicit your support in my race for Mayor.

I have lived in Ada twenty-one years and have been identified with the affairs of the City and having had experience in public office, I believe I am qualified for the duties of the office of Mayor.

I believe that I realize the responsibilities of the office and I promise that if I am elected I will use my best efforts in the administration of the affairs of the city of Ada so far as it is possible for me to do by faithfully performing the duties of the office of Mayor.

Thanking you in advance for a favorable consideration and your support in the primary tomorrow, I am,

Respectfully yours,
D. W. SWAFFER,
Candidate for Mayor

TRAFFIC OFFICER TELLS INTIMATE DETAILS

Officer Hinkle Says it's Easy To Smile When One's Health Is Good—Gives Tanlac Credit for Recovery

Few cities can boast of a more wide-awake and efficient traffic officer than Clarence D. Hinkle, 4345 Fleming St., Philadelphia, Pa., who has been a member of the Philadelphia Police Department for ten years and who handles the traffic at Fourth and Market Streets, one of the city's busiest corners.

"It is no easy thing," said Officer Hinkle, recently, "to serve the public with a smile when you are suffering the pangs of indigestion as I have done during the past year. Not only that, my appetite was lagging, I had frequent spells of nervousness and couldn't sleep right, and it kept me on my P's and Q's to look after my duties around the traffic zone."

But since I have taken Tanlac, my stomach and nerves are strong and normal and I eat, sleep and feel so good that my work is a genuine pleasure."

WHAT THEY SAY

Ada, Oklahoma, March 12, 1924

To the Patrons of School District No. 19, City of Ada Oklahoma

At the Primary election of this city to be held on next Tuesday, March 18th, you will be called upon to select three members for the Board of Education, inasmuch as the term of office of Mr. W. L. Whitaker, of the outlying District, Mr. L. Warr of Ward No. 3 and of Robert F. Wilbourn of Ward No. 2 expires at the first meeting of the Board of Education in May.

The writer is of the opinion that it is only fair and just to the welfare of the children that you should know something of the men and of their ideas of the administration of a school system that a city of this class should maintain.

First I wish to extend to you my appreciation of your support and co-operation in the administration of the policies of the school during the last two years. I especially wish to thank the Parent-Teachers' Association for their untiring efforts they have put forth and wish to commend them for the work they have done in helping to raise the standard of our schools by helping to beautify the school walls, by helping to beautify the school grounds by planting flowers and the erection of playground equipment. I especially wish to extend my appreciation to those associations, who through the resolutions at the last meeting expressed and pledged their support to the re-election of the present Board.

For this and for the solicitation by many others interested in the welfare of the schools the writer consented to have his name placed on the ballot in the primary for nomination and re-election. That you may understand my views on the subject of school administration I wish to briefly set forth a few ideas for your consideration.

I believe that the standard of Education should be raised. As a nation, Educationally, we stand on the eleventh step of the ladder from the top. As a state we stand on the thirty-sixth step from the top. As a city, of this class, we stand near the top. We are accredited for thirty-seven one-half units and a graduate of Ada High school is qualified to enter any school in the North Central Association. We are one state out of four in the union that has a constitutional limitation of taxation for maintenance of schools. I believe that efficiency should be the first and paramount qualification to consider in the employment of teachers. I believe that all basic education should be thorough. I believe the greatest need of our nation of today is Christian education. I believe the Bible is the best book that has ever come to earth and should be read daily in every school. I am proud of the fact that the writer made the motion to lay a Bible on the desk of every teacher in the grade schools of this city, the motion unanimously carried and a Bible provided for every teacher in the grade schools.

I believe in a reduction of taxes for maintenance of schools and this can only be done by equalizing the burden of taxation for dollar per capita amendment to the state Constitution at the October 2nd election. The cost of maintenance of our schools of Ada for 1924-1925 will be a little over $24,000 per capita. A levy of 3.5 mills on the state valuation will produce $15.00 per capita, based on the daily averaged attendance for 1923. At the same rate 7.7 mills will produce $30.00 per capita. Then 4 mills levy on the local valuation of six and one-half million dollars will raise approximately $107,000.00. This would be a total of 11.7 mills to produce $107,000.00 whereby we are now paying 15 mills on our school district valuation and are getting $100,124.00 this year. This law was made possible by the efforts and by the working together of a number of educational organizations. The Oklahoma School Board Association taking an active part in this, of which the writer is at this time secretary and J. T. Landrith of Sand Springs, Oklahoma, president.

I believe that every child should be afforded an equal opportunity for education. The above amendment will help to this end. Because a child who lives in a community with little valuation is no reason why he should not be afforded an equal opportunity with the child who lives where wealth is abundant. Statistics show that less than 10 per cent of the patrons of the schools of the nation attend school elections; less than 1 per cent visit the school room. Let us break this record Tuesday and have 90 per cent of the patrons cast their votes for three members of the Board of Education. You will have the privilege of casting your vote for three, one for each of the above mentioned wards. Vote to make your system of schools more efficient. Vote for a system that will aid in making better citizens of your boys and girls than yourself. If we fail to do this with the modern facilities of today, our lives will have been without success. Many other subjects might be mentioned but space does not permit. We submit to your desires. Respectfully yours,
ROBT. F. WILBORN.

Farmers' Column

Byron Hurrell

Eldo Plumlee informs me that the patrons of Latta consolidated school, determined to put a substantial fence around the property but being hard pressed financially at this time, has hit upon a plan that promises success. Each patron is to contribute a few dozen eggs or a surplus chicken or two. These will be sold and the proceeds applied on the fence. Just another case of where there is a will there is a way.

This weather is not particularly favorable for farming operations, but perhaps it is better now than later. A few farmers inform me that they have already planted corn.

The Oklahoma Farmer carries a department which it calls "Who, Who and Why in Farming." Its last issue carried a cut of Pontotoc county's home demonstration agent with this sketch:

For almost 10 years Mrs. Elva Duvall has been home demonstration agent in Pontotoc county, southern Oklahoma. This is the best record of continuous service in home demonstration ever held in Oklahoma. Mrs. Duvall is a native of Kentucky in which state she taught in country schools. Coming to Oklahoma in 1910 she continued her school work until becoming home demonstration agent. "During the first two years I planned to quit at the end of each month," she says, "but finally I began to see my field of work and it began to get hold of me. I have stayed on to see my first club girls married and mothering little children old enough to tell me that they, too, want to become club members."

The Egg Laying Contest.

(R. B. Thompson, Poultryman)
The third month of the first Oklahoma Egg Laying Contest has been one of nothing but encouragement so far as results are concerned. The first ten days of January were hard days for the hens and harder ones for the attendants. With temperatures below zero and a stiff wind from the north it was necessary to hold the hens in confinement. The production made a sharp drop but gradually came back to a point higher than before the cold snap. The production for January exceeded that of December by about one egg per hen.

The average sales value of eggs was increased slightly for the month by an increase in the market price of eggs from 39.8 cents per dozen in December to 42.5 cents per dozen for January. The sales values would have been greater but feed advanced some three cents per bushel has been charged for green feed. The green feed has been sprouted barley. A block five inches square sprouted for seven days has been given each hen daily.

The percentage production for the month was 43.34 and for the high pen 67.4 and for the high hen 90.3. The average sales value of eggs for the month has been $3.64 per pen and $5.66 for the high hen. Average production for pen has been 13.4 eggs per hen and for the high pen 20.9 eggs per hen.

Each month there has been a new winner for high place. For the month of November the honor was taken by the pen of Rhode Island White, of T. A. Layton, Kingfisher, Okla., with 169 eggs. In December the pen of The Fortune Poultry Farm, Boone, Tex., White Leghorns, won with 219 eggs. For January the high production is held by a pen of White Leghorns owned by Roy M. Lynch, Emerson, N. J., 209 eggs.

There are but 56 eggs separating the five high pens to date. The high pen having 546 eggs to its credit and the fifth pen 490 eggs. There are seven other pens with a production of over 400 eggs for the first three months which indicates that the final lap of the race has not been entered at this time. It also indicates that the winner will be forced to make a production of high rank in order to win.

The individual race is growing in interest. Each month new champions appear. For January there are seven hens in the first four high productions which have not been in the running before. A Buff Orpington leads with 28 eggs; she is followed by a White Langshan and a Rhode Island White each with 27 eggs, and next is three White Leghorns and one White Wyandotte with 26 eggs each.

A number of inquiries have been received asking for information regarding the second contest. This announcement will be published and sent out in about three months from this time.

PICKETT

Bro. Crutchfield preached at this place Sunday night. Attendance was small on account of bad weather. Velma McGee is reported better at present and we hope she will soon recover. She has had a very bad case of pneumonia.

Mrs. Sparks, the primary teacher, resigned last week. Her resignation is due to the fact that they are going to Colorado and they wanted to get started soon as they are going to start farming as soon as they get there. Mrs. Sparks is a very good primary teacher and was liked by all the pupils. Miss Wynona Davenport took her place Monday morning and everything is going nicely as all the children seem well pleased with their new teacher. Mr. Miller met with the Scouts Friday afternoon. He gave them some lessons in camp life and first aid. They had with them two scouts from Jones Chapel.

Elmer and Velma Sanders entered school Monday. They are living on the farm which the McMinn family has just vacated.

Everett Coley of Wilson, is staying with his grandfather, Mr. Crutson, while attending school here.

Rosalee Tate, who has been absent from school for a month, returned this morning.

Heard Kept Busy Listing Property In Rural Precincts

County Assessor Nick Heard continued his canvass of the county to list assessments of property owners last week and completed the estimate roles in several parts of the city.

The canvass is being conducted by Assessor Heard in order to convenience the filing of property valuations in the county with as little trouble as possible. The visits of Assessor Heard to the various parts of the county allows the property owners to file in home precinct and not be forced to come to the office here.

Assessor Heard stated that a noticeable reduction in the valuation of personal property was evident this year.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Lee Parry plays "Monna Vanna" in Fox's screen adaption of Maeterlinck's drama of that name. The picture was screened abroad and is now showing in this country and Miss Parry is said to do excellent work. Paul Wegener has the role of Gurliino and plays brilliantly.

The picture is remarkable for its architectural sets. Authentic street and plaza scenes in Florence and Pisa are reproduced with a lavish hand. The director was Richard Eichberg and the whole production illustrates the attention to accurate detail that the German school of motion picture acting gives.

Miss Fredrick Sagor is the youngest person serving in an editorial capacity in the motion picture industry. She is in her 22nd year, and is editor of the Eastern Scenario Department for Universal. Incidentally she is pretty enough to star on the screen, so bear the name in mind for Frederica may tire of scenarios and continuities.

Flora Le Breton, well known British screen star, has been cast for her first part in an American screen production. She will play "Mary Beamish" in the adaptation of Cosmo Hamilton's book, "Another Scandal." The picture will be made in Florida.

Jane Novak is ruining her eyesight reading these days in an endeavor to find a suitable story to screen. She wants something even better than "The Lullaby" and to date has read 27 novels and numerous short stories without finding what she wants.

May McAvoy is to make two pictures in Hollywood now she has finished "The Enchanted Cottage," where she played opposite Richard Barthelmess. She is to be directed first by William de Mille and then by George Fitzmaurice in "Tarnish."

Following Pola Negri's next starring vehicle, "A Woman of the Night," directed by Dimitri Buchowetski, she will be directed by Ernest Lubitsch in a story he has in mind which he feels no one but Pola can do satisfactorily.

Cecile B. DeMille is to produce "Temph," a story with modern industry for its background. Jeanie MacPherson who did the continuity for the "Ten Commandments" is adapting it from the May Edginton story.

A GREAT CAST FOR "THE DAY OF FAITH"

When Tod Browning decided to make "The Day of Faith" at the Goldwyn studios, he said he was going to have a "hand picked" cast.

As the patrons of the American theatre will see, Monday and Tuesday the famous director of screen melodrama, has indeed kept his word, for on the roster are one new star, one famous stage star, three widely known comedians and several of filmland's most familiar faces.

Eleanor Boardman is the newly risen star whose place in the cinema firmament was established by her work in "Souls for Sale," "Vanity Fair" and "Three Wise Fools." In the Roche story she enacts the leading feminine role.

Tyrone Power is the stage star, whose offering, "The Wandering Jew" and "The Servant in the House," have won him undying fame. "The Day of Faith" is Power's fifth picture and in the role of the millionaire who sought to control the world, he has given a fine performance.

Raymond Griffith, whom Marshall Neilan called "the greatest actor on the screen," is a former comedian who proved his ability in Goldwyn's "The Eternal Three," and "Red Lights." In "The Day of Faith" he interprets the cynical, carefree reporter, Tom Barnett. Ford Sterling, will always be remembered for his Keystone cop comedies. More recently his name has graced lights in "The Strangers' Banquet" and "The Spoilers." His part of Montreal Sammy in Arthur Somers Roche's story is one of the highlights of the production.

Charles Conklin, another comedian, known for his walrus whiskers and his conductor's cap, plays his first dramatic role in the Roche story. Other well known members of the cast are Wallace MacDonald, Jack Curtis, Jane Mercer, Edward Martin del, Winter Hall, Ruby Lafayette, Frances Hatton and Robert Dudley.

June Mathis and Katherine Kavanaugh adapted the story to the screen.

Exchange Fluctuations Feared.

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON—The government should take a hand in the present condition of the money exchange and exact legislation to prevent fluctuations, said Sir George Paish in an address before Birmingham manufacturers. He said that the exchange tended to hamper trade and unless arrested the fall of all or any one of the exchanges might involve political trouble.

State Grief

HAPPENINGS ABOUT THE STATE CAPITOL.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 17.—Governor Trapp has broken one precedent of Oklahoma executives by appearing on the floor of the houses of the legislature while in session. Several times during the recent second extraordinary session the governor appeared in senate to chat with members and on one occasion set at the desk with Senator Tom Anglin, president pro tempore. The governor, as lieutenant governor, during three administrations presided over the senate and all the members of the present body served under his presidency.

"It feels like home to be back on the floor," the governor remarked to one of the newspaper men during a stroll through the senate chamber.

Completion of one-half of the driveway from Sixteenth street to the capitol has given motorists a pavement connection with the Edmond and Tulsa highways. Previously automobile drivers were forced to detour to reach the highways. Under the direction of Max Cunningham, former superintendent of capitol grounds, now superintendent of a construction company, work on the roadways and sidewalks around the state house is being pushed. The capitol work will be completed by summer, Cunningham said.

Crowded conditions in the capitol will be remedied now that the legislature has adjourned. The senate and house required several rooms for their officers and clerical help and as a result state bureaus were crowded together to make room for the legislative offices. A re-arrangement of offices will be made soon, capitol authorities said.

The movie censorship bill said to have been introduced in the senate as a "joker" had a boomerang effect on those who engineered the joke. It has intended as a mild rebuke to the Oklahoma City solon for not providing more theatre passes for the senators during the session just ended, but after it reached the floor several members took it seriously and sought to push it through. The survey committee, announced as the author of the bill, refused to acknowledge it and Senator Wash Hudson, acting president, refused to permit its being called up for third reading, there was none to claim it as their work.

STEEDMAN

FINAL STATEMENT OF CLINT MIERS

To the Voters:

I am now making my final appeal for your support in the coming election, in which I am a candidate for Commissioner of Accounting and Finance for the City of Ada.

I have been unable to make a house to house campaign as some have done and it has been impossible to see all in person.

I submit my name upon the record I have made, and the way I have discharged my duties while in the Court Clerk's office and am running this race on my merits and not on the demerits of my opponent, not a candidate for any organization and therefore will not be obligated to anyone if elected, and will discharge the duties in the city office without showing the least partiality to anyone.

Seeking your support and influence, I am,

Respectfully,
